DEAN’S COMMENTS

“The librarians are amazing. They work very hard to solve problems, with extensive networks to branch out for solutions to difficult problems.”

The comment above was among the responses to the University Libraries’ 2015 LibQual survey. The comment resonated with me because the librarians are excellent problem solvers. The team of librarians at the University Libraries strives to provide faculty and students with the best information at the right time.

As you embark on the new academic year, you can count on the library faculty and staff to assist you with navigating the Libraries’ wide range of information resources and services. Last year, they helped over 4,758 students and faculty with locating hard-to-find sources, literature searches, using EndNote, archival and oral history collections and more.

Whether you are a senior faculty member or just beginning your career or studies at USD, please get to know the faculty librarian who works with your department.
